

Congratulating National Academy of Medicine Election

Bruce Landon, MD, MBA, MSc

Bruce Landon, MD, MBA, MSc, faculty in the Division of General Medicine, has been elected as a Member of the National Academy of Medicine. Election to the Academy is considered one of the highest honors in the fields of health and medicine and recognizes individuals who have demonstrated outstanding professional achievement and commitment to service. New members are elected by current members through a process that recognizes individuals who have made major contributions to the advancement of the medical sciences, healthcare, and public health.

Dr. Landon is a Professor of Healthcare Policy at Harvard Medical School and a Professor of Medicine at HMS and BIDMC, where he practices internal medicine. Dr. Landon studies tools that help translate macro-level policies and incentives into treatment strategies that lead to better care at lower cost, namely strategies to promote integrated care, payment incentives at both the organization and physician level, and approaches to quality management and improvement.

Dr. Landon graduated summa cum laude from the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania with a major in finance. He received his MD degree from the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, and an MBA with a concentration in healthcare management from the Wharton School. He also received an MSc in health policy and management from the Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health. He also completed his internal medicine residency at Beth Israel. He is a fellow of the American College of Physicians and is an elected member of the American Society of Clinical Investigation and the Association of American Physicians.

Click here to read the official National Academy of Medicine press release. Dr. Landon joins a small and prestigious group of fellow BIDMC faculty who are already members of the NAM, including Department members Dr. Barbara Kahn, Dr. Dan Barouch, Dr. Jerome Groopman, Dr. Sharon Inouye, and Dr. Alexa McCray.