Congratulating HMS Most Outstanding Core Clerkship Site Director

Amy R. Weinstein, MD, MPH

Amy R. Weinstein, MD, MPH, general internist in the Division of General Medicine, has been recognized by Harvard Medical School as the 2026 Most Outstanding Core Clerkship Site Director at BIDMC for her work as the Core I Medicine Clerkship Site Director. This award is presented to the site director of a PCE core clerkship who, in the past year, demonstrated outstanding excellence in their educational leadership. The award is among HMS's most visible commendations of teaching accomplishments and reflects in a tangible way how much the Clerkship Director is valued by their students and by HMS.

Colleagues who nominated Dr. Weinstein praised her sustained leadership of the Core I Medicine Clerkship and thoughtful attention to each student's clinical experience. They highlighted her work protecting opportunities for individual teaching, developing the Transitions of Care curriculum, and strengthening the Core Faculty program. Dr. Weinstein's commitment to teaching and mentorship has helped create a learning environment grounded in trust, inclusion, and high expectations.

Dr. Weinstein is an Associate Professor of Medicine at HMS. She has served as a medical educator for more than 20 years at HMS and BIDMC. She is the HMS Director of Student Programs for the BIDMC Department of Medicine and has served as the BIDMC Clerkship Director for the HMS Core I Medicine Clerkship for the last 11 years. Additionally, Dr. Weinstein is the Chair of the national Clerkship Directors of Internal Medicine (CDIM) Survey and Scholarship Committee and sits on the CDIM Council. She has published, spoken, and been recognized nationally for her work in medical education.
